These Are Closing Sales Each Day.

tion to be opposed with early conviction. The real question this morning was not whether prices would decline, but how far the decline would extend. The question still remained undecided when the market closed, with speculative liquidation still in force and prices on the down grade, except where professional room shorts were taking hasty profits by covering their contracts.

As a result of the day's trading prices in a number of prominent industrials, including Sugar, Tennessee Coal, Steel and Wire and People's Gas suffered declines of from 3 to 4 points, and Metropolitan Railway lost 4%. A still larger list of industrials fell between 2 and 3 points, and in the railroad list not a few losses reached between 1 and 2 points. The most substantial commission houses in the street have been advising their customers for several days past to take their profits and to buy no more stocks for the present. Professional operators, except some powerful speculative pools, have sold out on a very extensive scale and taken their profits.

The extent to which the advance has gone made the market as a matter of course top-heavy, filled, as it was, with many speculative accounts on light margins and backed by weak financial holders. Professional bear speculators, who have been looking for the moment of reaction ever since last Wednesday, found that the free selling to-day for the first time was not effectually absorbed. Their efforts were redoubled, and when prices began to make wide declines, stop loss orders were dislodged and the fall thus precipitated. The bears were in a reckless mood and were quick to take profits, causing frequent rallies as they covered their short contracts. While same outside demand continued during the day it was at no time resumed in force.

The expectation of another large war loan to be floated in London depressed that market, and was a direct influence in New York as well. It effiphasized the apprehension hitherto felt of a further German issue also, It is not to be supposed that with the huge indebtedness of the foreign mercey markets to the United States the foreign government authorities can hope to successfully float their loans without assistance from American money markets. Experts believe that an outward movement of gold from New York will probably be necessary.

The money which is used for speculative purposes in the stock market is money for which no more substantial demand exists, and it is invariably the rule that when any advantageous opportunity is offered for investment of capital speculative borrowers are called upon to repay their credits. With this prospect in the future, call inoney in New York advanced to 6 per cent. to day, notwithstanding the considerable speculative liquidation. An active demand sprang up for short time loans, which forced the rate up for 60 and 90 day money to 5 per cent.

The Cotton Markets.

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET.

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET.

New York, Nov. 13.—There was less activity in cotton circles to-day. The market opened steady with prices unchanged to five points lower. There was a further decline of 16@14 points and then a sharp rally. The early easiness was chiefly due to unsatisfactory cables. Later, however, local conditions became more energetic following a rumor that Neill was ready with a bullish cotton circular. This led to some pretty active trading here, the shorts became particularly interested and Wall street and the South also bought freely. Prices moved up 10@12 points from the lowest figures of the forenoon. The upward movement was facilitated by indications of colder weather over the eastern and central sections of the cotton belt and rains in the western localities. At the same time the Southern spot markets were generally working towards higher prices. Selling was chiefly for the purporter.
